Tools of Information Collection for Statistical Purposes

1. Censuses
   1.1 Population Censuses,
   1.2 Agricultural Census,
   1.3 Economic Census.

2. Periodical Reporting
   2.1 Organizations and individual entrepreneur,
   2.2 State bodies,
   2.3 Local self-government bodies.

3. Sample Surveys
   3.1 Physical persons (including households),
   3.2 Organizations and individual entrepreneurs,
   3.3 State bodies,
   3.4 Local self-government bodies.
Statistical Respondents: Providers of Primary Initial Information

1. Physical persons (including households),
2. Organizations and individual entrepreneurs,
3. State bodies,
4. Local self-government bodies.
Primary Recording Systems of Primary Information Providers (Respondents)

1. Physical persons
   1.1 Official documents characterizing civil and legal relations,
   1.2 Voluntary and discretionary opinions, oral answers.

2. Organizations
   2.1 Documents on accounting records,
   2.2 Documents on tax records,
   2.3 Documents on customs records,
   2.4 Registers of organizations rendering public services of quasi-fiscal sphere,
   2.5 Operational monitoring, office work, organizational and other documents.
(continuation)

3. State Bodies
   3.1 Administrative registers formed within the framework of state authorities,
   3.2 Operational monitoring, office work, organizational and other documents.

4. Local Self-government Bodies
   4.1 Administrative registers formed within the framework of self-government bodies authorities,
   4.2 Operational monitoring, office work, organizational and other documents.
PECULIARITY OF USE OF ADMINISTRATIVE REGISTERS* DATA BY OFFICIAL STATISTICS

- Official statistics, as a supplier of statistical information, has the right to use and change the information received from the administrative registers in order to ensure their relevance and comparability with statistical definitions and classifications,

- The data derived in that way are not transmitted to the owner of primary information (administrative register) or provided to the third persons to use them for administrative purposes.

Issues Related to Formation and Use of Administrative Registers

- Users should perceive suppliers of statistical information, in particular national statistical services as organizations radically differing from state institutions oriented to certain policy,
- precise definition of contents of administrative and statistical purposes and relations between them,
- guarantee of not involving the official statistics in available conflicts between administrative and similar interests, (continuation)

- to ensure the free use of administrative information for statistical purposes,
- to promote the extension of the administrative information sources based on modern ICT,
- to improve a quality of administrative information and develop a methodology,
- to develop and improve a statistical methodology of use of administrative sources for statistical purposes.

Information sources of official statistics

- surveys and interviews,
- administrative registers.

Integrated model of administrative registers
Factors promoting the solution of above-mentioned issues could be

- General accounting and statistical culture in the country,
- integrity of payment and accounting system of the country,
- completeness of reforms in the country management system,
- degree and scope of use of international standards and classifications in payment and accounting system of the country,
- coherence, accessibility and comparability of methodology applying both at national and international levels,
- complexity (clarity) degree and tools of state registration, licensing, permission and other procedures,
